

Bipolar Wellbeing Tips

Build a trusted network of people around you to support low mood

Make a plan for how you want to be treated when you need help

Teach people you trust how to spot signs of mania, and when you might need intervention

Prioritise keeping your stress levels in check

Monitor your moods using a mood diary (FormScore works well too 😊)

Eating a balanced diet can help to support a calm mood

Get to know your triggers

Exercise regularly to trigger feel-good chemicals in your brain

Learn your warning signs before an episode

Take steps to ensure a good night's sleep
